ⁱ Legislative Referendum (LR) is divided into two categories, Legislative Amendments (LA) and Legislative Statutes (LS). Legislative Amendments (LA) are constitutional amendments placed on the ballot by the legislature or government body. This includes constitutional bond issues and amendments proposed by a constitutional revision commission. Legislative Statutes (LS) are binding and non-binding statutes (laws) and statutory bonds placed on the ballot by the legislature or government body.

ⁱⁱ All the states marked with the exception of Delaware are required by their constitution to place Legislative amendments on the ballot for voter approval.

ⁱⁱⁱ States are not required to place legislative statutes on the ballot. The states that are marked give their legislature the authority to place statutes on the ballot for a public vote.

^{iv} Delaware is the only state whose constitution doesn't require voter approval for constitutional amendments proposed by the state legislature.
